GENERAL INFORMATION PERTAINING TO WATER RIGHTS IN CALIFORNIA

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been severed from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. Generally, a riparian water user must share the water supply with other riparian users. Riparian rights may be used to divert the natural flow of a stream but may not be used to store water for later use or divert water which originates in a different watershed, water previously stored by others, return flows from use of groundwater, or other "foreign" water to the natural stream system.

An appropriative right is required for use of water on nonriparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914, new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State. Appropriate rights can be granted to waters "foreign" to the natural stream system.

Statements of Water Diversion and Use must be filed by riparian and pre 1914 appropriative water users as set forth in Water Code section 5100 with specific exceptions. The filing of a statement (1) provides a record of water use, (2) enables the State to notify such users if someone proposes a new appropriation upstream from their diversions, and (3) assists the State to determine if additional water is available for future appropriators.

The above discussion is provided for general information. For more specific information concerning water rights, please contact an attorney or write to this office. We have several pamphlets available. They include: (1) Statements of Water Diversion and Use, (2) Information Pertaining to Water Rights in California, and (3) Appropriation of Water in California.

Thank you for the notice of assignment from the present owner of record with your letter of March 7, 1996 advising that you have acquired the rights to water held in Doyle Reservoir. Our records will be updated to show the statement in your name.

A supplemental statement is required every three years (Section 5104). The form is automatically sent to the owner of record at the close of the period. The form provides reporting use of water by months in each of the preceding calendar years and any change in the other information contained in the preceding statement.

Thank you for your cooperation.

There are two principal types of surface water rights in California. They are riparian and appropriative rights.

A riparian right enables an owner of land bordering a natural lake or stream to take and use water on his riparian land. Riparian land must be in the same watershed as the water source and must never have been severed from the sources of supply by an intervening parcel without reservation of the riparian right to the severed parcel. An appropriative right is required for use of water on nonriparian land and for storage of water. Generally, appropriative rights may be exercised only when there is a surplus not needed by riparian water users. Since 1914 new appropriators have been required to obtain a permit and license from the State.

Dear Mr. Launitz:

Please change the water right owner of "Statement of Water Diversion and Use" number 9458 from Kenneth J. & Irene H. Doyle to the U.S.D.A. Forest Service, Plumas National Forest. The Statement was filed in 1977 for a pre-1914 water right (diversion and use began in 1898).

Doyle Reservoir is on public land administered by the U.S. Forest Service. The recorded owner, Kenneth and Irene Doyle, have not operated the storage and diversion works associated with the reservoir for more than 5 years. Their special use permit with the U.S. Forest Service for operation of the dam and diversion works was canceled in 1985. The permittee, Kenneth Doyle, claimed to no longer need the water, which was used primarily for irrigation.

We also request that the place of use and the use itself be changed. The U.S. Forest Service has been operating the reservoir for several years, including maintenance, for wetland and wildlife enhancement. Water is stored in the reservoir for use during the dry season, but is not diverted for use elsewhere.

The season of use will remain the same, March 1 to November 31 of each year. The maximum storage capacity of the reservoir is approximately 49 acre-feet.

If you have questions, please contact Terry Benoit of this office at (916) 283-2050.
